Pamala brings a unique combination of structure and emotional intelligence to complex and sensitive cases.

With a background as a Psychotherapist, she excels at diffusing stressful, high-conflict situations while facilitating a collaborative, party-driven process that promotes understanding and encourages creative problem-solving.

Her education includes an M.S. in counseling psychology from the State University of New York (SUNY), with specialized training in facilitative mediation, arbitration, parenting coordination, divorce, restorative justice, addictions, domestic violence and sexual assault, and cultural competency.

If you are seeking services from a professional who values fairness and respectful dialogue, Pamala is dedicated to creating a supportive, equitable process where all parties feel heard and respected.
